Lewisohn Art To Go To Museums

The collection of modern art of the late Samuel A. Lewisohn, considered one of the most extensive in the world, is being shown to the public at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York, for one month. The exhibition in all will be the only time the collection can be seen in its entirety because a number of the finest paintings are to be dispersed among four museums and a university immediately after the show closes on December 2. The remainder of the art works will be kept by the family, according to the New York Herald Tribune.

The collection comprises 180 oils, watercolors, drawings and pieces of sculpture, ranging from the French Impressionists to the high-keyed "Melon Slices," by the Mexican artist, Ruffino Tamayo, the last work of art bought by Mr. Lewisohn before his death in March this year. Mr. Lewisohn died at Santa Barbara, Calif., where he was on vacation. He lived at 115 E. 73d Street.

Francis Henry Taylor, director of the Metropolitan, said in a foreword to the exhibition's catalogue it might be better called "the Lewisohn epitome or anthology of modern art rather than collection. . . . He just kept on buying what he liked, helping young artists he believed in, refining his own judgments and perceptions and writing upon art in order to clarify his own beliefs."

The works show a wide range of styles and periods but reflect an uncommonly consistent taste. Including some of the very best of the works produced by the many painters represented, says the Herald Tribune. Theodore [illegible] Jr., curator of paintings at the Metropolitan, spoke of the [illegible] within, this variety of [illegible] as something [illegible] with [illegible] in a moment of fulfillment when it has produced a something complete."

Among the more than $1,000,000 worth of paintings from this collection to be distributed among museums, the Metropolitan is to receive eight, Rousseau's "The Repast of the Lion," Seurat's "Grande Jatte," Gauguin's "Ia Orana Maria," Renoir's "In the Meadow," Cezanne's "Apples and Primroses," Van Gogh's "L'Arlesienne," Sterne's "Winding Path," and Pascin's "Young Girl."

The Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences will receive Glackens' "The Century Fair," Pascin's "Three Girls," and Sterne's "The

"Broadway Sam" Was Benefactor Of Projects For Poor

Sam Roth, forty-eight, whose Runyonesque personality prompted show people to give him the name "Broadway Sam," died in New York of a heart ailment at the Hotel St. Moritz, where he had lived for twenty years in a room with a star-spangled ceiling and walls that groaned under numerous plaques and framed newspaper columns of which he was the subject.

Broadway Sam appeared at many benefit shows, especially at veterans hospitals, acting as master of ceremonies and singing and telling stories. He was a member of the American Guild of Variety Artists, the Jewish Theatrical Guild, and the Actors Temple.

Mr. Roth, who was as widely known on Broadway as the stuffed derma on Lindy's menu, was associated with the Broadway Theater Ticket Service, 227 W. 45th Street. He set out early in life to become a Broadway "character"—one of the most cherished words in his picturesque vocabulary—and his success was notable. Most of the characters in "Guys and Dolls" could have been patterned after him and, in fact, Damon Runyon, from whose stories the musical's book was taken, wrote a number of columns about him, as did Dan Parker and others.

Mr. Roth was 6 feet, 4 inches tall, and weighed nearly 250 pounds. He covered this hulking frame in some of the most flamboyant clothes ever seen outside the finale of a musical comedy, says the New York Herald Tribune. He affected canary-yellow jackets, gaudy plaids, highly tailored silk shirts and loud neckerchiefs which he preferred to the common garden variety of necktie. His hats were [illegible] colored and broad-brimmed [illegible] face as his own.

Mr. Roth was a furious champion of various charities and canvassed Broadway for the funds with which the Nordacs Club, of which he was a leading light, used to distribute Passover and Christmas baskets. Nordacs gave him a testimonial dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria which was attended by 500 persons, including the casts of "Guys and Dolls" and "Seventeen."

He was not unaccustomed to such tributes. Comedians hailed him from the stage when he turned up for a performance of the stage hits to which he sold tickets. Night-club masters of ceremonies

Warns Fund Lack May Check Entry To Israel

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, in a cabled message received in Washington, warned that his country's big immigration program was in danger of being "drastically limited" because of a shortage of funds.

The message was made public before the United Palestine Appeal's National Conference for Israel. In his cable to Rudolf G. Sonneborn, national chairman of the appeal, Mr. Ben-Gurion said that the conference "comes at a time when the rate of immigration to Israel depends in great measure on maximum support of American Jewry."

He emphasized that at least 500,000 Jews "in acute danger and tension areas throughout the world are eager to come to Israel, but serious shortage of funds can drastically impede influx." Since the establishment of Israel as a nation in 1948 about 700,000 immigrants have been received and the population now numbers more than 1,300,000.

Recent dispatches from Israel have underscored the fledgling state's economic difficulties because of the lack of hard currency. Unofficial mention also has been made of the need of restricting immigration because of the mounting economic problems. Up to now, however, Israeli officials have asserted that the full flow of immigrants would continue, says the New York Times.

Mr. Ben-Gurion said that the United Palestine Appeal, as the major beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal campaign, "helped lay the foundation of development of state." He added: "On your continued full-fledged aid as the central fund for Israel's immigration and resettlement program [illegible] grants.

"We are profundly grateful to President Truman and the American people and Government for cooperation in our task of building a strong and viable core of democracy in the Middle East. We look to the Jews of America through the United Palestine Appeal and the United Jewish Appeal to rally efforts and resources in helping us to build a free democratic and independent nation."

The aid to which Mr. Ben-Gurion referred was the loan of $135,000,000 granted by the Export-Import Bank and President Truman's recent signing of the Mutual Security Bill, under which Israel will receive $64,000,000.

Ellis Radinsky, executive director of the United Palestine Appeal, asserted that U. P. A. agencies in Israel had spent $134,201,000 in the last fiscal year for the transportation, rehabilitation, and limited resettlement of 208,000 immigrants. He said that the expenditures were $40,000,000 less than the budget set for this year. Because of the drastic shortage of funds, he added, the agencies were able to provide "only the most minimum of needs."

About $45,600,000, he said, was expended for agricultural development to pay for the founding of fifty new settlements, the consolidation of 230 colonies, and irrigation of about 100,000 acres.

Dr. Yeshayahu Foerder, of the Israeli Parliament and leader of the Progressive Party of that country is in New York on a two weeks' visit to discuss American participation in Israeli housing and industrial projects. Suggested housing is blueprinted at $5,000,000, with an initial expenditure of $1,000,000, he said, and industrial proposals include road building, wood frame works and steel porcelain plants for such products as bathtubs.

Speaking of the inflationary influences in his country, Dr. Foerder pointed out that the military and ordinary budgets of the government are balanced and that the development budget is the only one out of balance at this time, reports the New York Herald Tribune.

Questioned on whether or not private enterprise was favored by the present government, Dr. Foerder said that all development projects were being considered on the merits for the economy as a whole, with priorities and licenses for imports and exchange given accordingly.

Dr. Foerder is also managing director of Rural and Suburban Settlement Co., Ltd., known in abbreviation as Rassco, a seventeen-year-old public company whose common stock is owned outright

MEET TO SET UP MACHINERY OF WORLD JEWS IN EVENT GERMANY MEANS TO INDEMNIFY

Representatives of twenty major organizations, joined informally by ranking Israel officials, held a two-day special conference at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, to establish machinery in the event the German Federal Republic implements its recent announcement to make restitution for crimes committed against the Jews under the Nazi regime.

The executive committee, with the exception of a representative from France who will be appointed later, was announced as follows: Dr. Leo Baeck, Dr. N. Barou and Dr. Abraham Cohen, of London; Samuel Bronfman, of Montreal; Frank Goldman, of Lowell, Mass.; Jacob Blaustein, Baltimore; Dr. Nahum Goldmann, Dr. Israel Goldstein, Adolph Held, Dr. Isaac Lewin and Dr. Irving Miller, all of New York.

The conference was brought on by the recent statement of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer that the West German government is ready to discuss the claims problem with representatives of the Jewish people and the state of Israel. The arrangements were made through the Jewish Agency for Palestine, but the conference was sponsored equally by all participating organizations.

The conference was closed to the public, but preliminary statements of some of the representatives indicated that they were skeptical of the German statement and that they believe the best the conference could do would be to set up machinery for discussions in the event that the Germans make more concrete proposals, according to the New York Herald Tribune.

One representative, Dr. Isaac [illegible], chairman of the American section of the world executive of Agudath Israel, said he believed it would be demeaning to the Jewish people to discuss reparations directly with the German government and urged that any dealings be done through the occupying nations or United Nations.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, said it was his hope that the conference could fix a common Jewish policy with regard to the claim of the Israel government on the cost of rehabilitation of thousands of victims of Nazi persecution and claims of the Jewish people for property unjustly seized by the German government.

Ambassador Eban disagreed with those who believe it would be immoral for the Jewish people to accept cash payment reparations from a nation that had committed atrocious crimes against them. "It would be a supreme immorality", he said, "if Israel, having been unable to save the 6,000,000 martyrs, were to neglect any measure whereby Germany would be called to account for the benefit of the survivors."

The other sponsoring organizations are the Universal Alliance of Israel, American Jewish Committee, American Jewish Congress, American Zionist Council, Anglo-Jewish Association, Bnai Brith, Board of Deputies of British Jews, British Section of the World Jewish Congress, Canadian Jewish Congress, Representative Council of Jews of France, Council for the Rights and Interests of the Jews from Germany, and Argentine Israel Association. Also the Executive Council of Australian Jewry, Jewish Labor Committee, Jewish War Veterans of the United States, South African Jewish Board of Deputies, Synagogue Council of America, and World Jewish Congress.

The conference, which included representatives from the United States, France, Great Britain, Canada, Argentina, Germany, Australia, South Africa and Israel, appointed a policy committee of one representative from each of the twenty organizations and the above-named executive committee. The latter committee was "authorized to take such practical steps as developments may necessitate."

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, who presided at the conference which was called "for the sole purpose of considering Jewish material claims against Germany," explained that nothing of any nature, besides this limited objective, pertaining to the future relations between the Jews of the world and the German government was contemplated by this conference, according to the New York Herald Tribune.

A conference statement explained that "no indemnity, however large, can make good the destruction of human life and cultural values or atone for the agony of men, women and children tortured or put to death by every inhuman device."

The statement, referring to the recent declaration made by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the German Federal Government acknowledging German responsibility to the Jewish people, pointed out that no such acknowledgment, however, had been received from Eastern Germany. The Adenauer declaration on the German people's obligation to make amends, said the conference, "will be judged by the speed and extent of its implementation."

The conference also made the following points:

1. Recorded its support of the $1,500,000,000 claim made by the Government of Israel for the rehabilitation in that country of the victims of Nazi persecution.

2. Demanded satisfaction of all other Jewish claims against Germany, including claims for restitution and indemnification by individuals, successor organizations and others, and for rehabilitation of the Jewish victims of Nazi persecution.

3. Called for immediate steps to improve existing restitution and indemnification legislation and procedure, to enact such legislation where it does not exist and to speed up the settlement of Jewish claims in these fields.

Jewish communal leaders stressed that the Bonn Government had the moral and legal obligation to make restitution "for the theft and destruction of Jewish property." At the same time they said "it was inconceivable that the Jewish people would forget or forgive the murder of 6,000,000 Jews."

Outlining his nation's reparation claims on Germany, including the $1,500,000,000 cost of resettling Jews in Israel, Abba Eban, Israeli Ambassador to the United States, said this figure did not include an estimated $6,000,000,000 in property confiscations nor "the unpayable value of human life lost in Germany under the Nazi regime," says the New York Times.

Referring to the note submitted by his Government to the four occupying powers, the United States, Great Britain, France and Soviet Russia on March 2, 1951, in behalf of "Israel's minimal claim," he said: "If spread over a period of years and transferred partly in the form of goods, a payment of this indemnity is well within the capacity of the German people."

Dr. Nahum Goldmann asserted that "the highest moral validity lies in our doing everything possible to satisfy the claims of Israel and of the Jewish people, enabling hundreds of thousands of new immigrants to enter Israel." Dr. Goldmann urged the creation of the representative committee, "appointed by us and instructed by us in general policy," to provide a practical method for solving the problem if the Bonn Government sets forth a proposal.

Dr. Israel Goldstein, representing the World Jewish Congress, said that "mere statements or declarations on the part of German statesmen, or even of the German Parliament, will be in themselves of no significance" unless "they are implemented by acts."

Jacob Blaustein, president of the American Jewish Committee, calling for an early settlement of "all claims," said: "The claims of the State of Israel are not the only claims. We must press equally for the claims of all Jewry."

Jacob Pat, secretary of the Jewish Labor Committee, said that the demand for reparations did not imply for his organization, any attitude of forgiveness of all that had been done to the Jewish people. Other speakers included Dr. Isaac Lewin, chairman of the American section of the Agudath Israel; Dr. Abraham Cohen, president of the board of deputies of British Jews; Bernard Bernstein, of Bnai Brith; E. Social Notes — Montreal

Mrs. Simon Kirsch, 5005 MacDonald Avenue, went to Scarsdale, N. Y., to visit with her son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Edward Kirsch, and grandchildren, Robert Alan and Peter Lee, for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Veroff, de la Peltrie Avenue, celebrated the bar-mitzvah of their son, Murray Louis, who was called to the Reading of the Law at Bnai Jacob Synagogue. He is the brother of Judy and Barbara. Kiddush was observed after the ceremony. Mrs. Veroff wore a two-toned grey wool suit, fashioned with a lapelled collar, and slim skirt, with a white lace blouse, and a grey felt hat. About eighty guests were present at a cocktail reception at home. Receiving, Mrs. Veroff wore a cocktail dress composed of black velvet, with semi-flared skirt, and a white lame bodice, designed with a portrait neckline and cape sleeves; and had a corsage of red roses. Judy wore a dress made of a black velvet bodice, with a plaid yoke, puffed plaid sleeves, and flared plaid skirt; and Barbara wore a red velvet dress, with a Peter Pan collar, and puffed sleeves, and dirndle-effect skirt. The table was decorated with a bar-mitzvah cake and a fruit centrepiece.

Mrs. Samuel Grostern, Phillips Avenue, entertained at a tea presentation to honor her cousin, Miss Jeannette Singer, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Singer, de Bullion Street, fiancee of Bernard Phillips, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Phillips, Jeanne Mance Street, and a bride-elect of November 17. The hostess wore a navy-blue crepe dress, inset with lace; and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by her daughter, Miss Jacqueline Grostern, wearing a black and white checked wool dress, with corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Singer, mother of the bride-elect, wore a black wool two-piece suit-dress, trimmed with black velvet, and a corsage of Tea roses. Mrs. Phillips, mother of the groom-elect, wore a navy-blue crepe dress, trimmed with insertions of white polka dots, with a corsage of white carnations. Miss Singer, the honoree, wore a strapless black lace dress, over a sand-colored taffeta slip, with a full skirt, and a matching jacket, designed with a V-shaped neckline, and three-quarter-length sleeves; and her corsage was of yellow carnations. Carnations, gladioli, and pom-poms composed the table decoration.

Previously, such works had been published in the Palestine Oriental Society journal, a magazine which had a small circulation and was able to devote only limited space to the work of Jewish scholars. After the establishment of the State of Israel, the Palestine Oriental Society was dissolved and its journal was discontinued. The Israel Exploration Journal is attractively illustrated and the text is written in a style intelligible both to scientist and layman. A grant to the Hebrew University of Jerusalem for recording secular and sacred music in Israel has been made by the ESCO Foundation, to insure the continuation of this work by Dr. Johanna Spector, musicologist, who, for the past nine months has been in Israel recording traditional and folk melodies of the many ethnic groups. It will enable Dr. Spector to analyze the collections of the late scholar in this field, Dr. Robert Lachman, while continuing her transcriptions and studies of the melodies of Yemenite, Iraqian, Egyptian, and other Oriental Jews. She received the first doctor's degree in Jewish music ever awarded to a woman by the Hebrew Union College, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Rheumatic fever is a serious disease that causes painful inflammation of the joints and may affect the heart of other organs. By building up the child's physical condition by a balanced diet, augmented by vitamin D in capsule, liquid or drop form, and using common sense in seeing that the youngster has sufficient rest, fresh air and protection from chills, resistance to disease may be increased.

Tuberculosis has dropped from first place to eighth place on the list of fatal diseases. The hope of entirely eliminating the disease in this country rests upon the cooperation of every citizen. The chest x-ray examination, free in most parts of Canada, detects TB in its earliest and most curable stages. Every citizen should take advantage of this protection for himself and his family.

"BROADWAY SAM"

always announced his presence. When he attended a movie, he frequently made known his presence by predicting quite audibly what turn the plot would take next and he rarely missed. His sports predictions were sometimes less tangible. Asked once about the outcome of an approaching Kentucky Derby, he replied, "The Kentucky Derby must be won."

Mr. Roth's speech, which was as flamboyant as his clothes, was frequently couched in the third person singular when he spoke of himself, says the Herald Tribune. When asked why he never married he once said, "You can say about Broadway Sam that many girls are trying to get him but girls is the last thought he ever lets enter his head. He does not let his mind get out of hand on such things."

One of fourteen children, Mr. Roth was born on Sheriff Street, the son of an Austrian tailor. He worked in Fulton Fish Market and at the Central Postoffice before he was hired, at sixteen, by the late Charles Levy, a Broadway ticket broker. He remained in the brokerage business the rest of his life.

He was a member of Actors Temple; and Temple Beth El, Long Beach, L. I.; and of the American Guild of Variety Artists. Surviving are three brothers, Aaron, Sidney, and Robert Roth.

Remembrance Day

This Sunday, November 11th, throughout the free world, we shall recall those who made the supreme sacrifice in World War I and War II. Remembrance Day should be not a perfunctory matter, but a purposeful rededication to the ideals for which the heroic dead gave all.

Often we are cast into a mood of pessimism. We ask ourselves, why such a shocking waste of precious lives? After all these heavy sacrifices made, these seem to have borne so little fruit! The cynicism is understandable, but does not rest on reasonable judgment. When we generalize and say war yields nothing, that is a dangerous half-truth. Of course, war is a poor method of settling disputes, because often war creates new problems more baffling than old ones.

But who can say that the battle of Waterloo which saved Europe from the crushing heel of Napoleon did not yield some good for the world? Who can deny that World War II did destroy the might of the German master race? Surely, the Israeli war for independence, fought but recently, did finally yield the State of Israel to the Jews of the world. Indeed, we dare not say that the martyrs of War II constituted a waste. Selflessness, gallantry, heroism, and sacrifice in the cause of idealism are never futile. These furnish inspiring examples which live on from age to age and they are woven into the fabric of other men's lives.

We average humans are most of the time selfish. We are for more concerned with our personal ambitions and we clamour for our rights. Hence, once a year, when we recall the heroic dead, who renounced for love of country life itself, our selfishness is rebuked and we strive to become better men and women because of those who made the supreme sacrifice. They who died for human freedom must themselves have hated war, but they answered the call of duty. They did not want to die. They had parents, sweethearts. They had homes. They loved their homes. But answering the call of duty, they forfeited all these that they loved and even their hopes and dreams. Our mood today should be that of thanksgiving, that such heroic men lived, and remember we must that our freedom which we enjoy now was purchased by them at a great price.

Not only two minutes of silence ought we to observe on Remembrance Day. Rather should we indulge in hours of reflection. Why is our world now divided? Why are we forging new weapons? Are we not mature enough at long last to build the one world, a world founded on universal justice and righteousness? Has not the time arrived to outlaw war among nations? Let nations rather war on hunger, disease, and the sub-human standards of life which prevail in so many parts of the world. Let men and women everywhere with greater resolution, more than ever, devote themselves to remove prejudice, intolerance, and injustice and seek out the roots and causes which divide people. Let them destroy these roots and causes so that at last we may as mature people usher in an age of positive peace as visioned by the great prophets of Israel.

Taking Liberties With The Word Of The Law For The Sake Of Entertainment

BY RABBI NORMAN N. SHAPIRO, GOEL TZEDEC SYNAGOGUE, TORONTO

Of late there has been a return to the Bible. The new books on the literary market, the new movies, the increase in Biblical radio programs, and even an attempt to present Biblical drama on television. Each year the prolific writer, Sholem Asch, has presented a new novel with a Biblical historical background. His new novel, "Moses" is among the best sellers. It follows a trio of Biblical books which began with the novel "Mary".

From Hollywood have come tremendous productions of Biblical instances. Samson, David and Bathsheba, and throughout the movie columns you will find reference to all types of new attempts on presenting more stories from the Bible to the public. Both the old and the new Testament have been filmed and not only are they being used for entertainment purposes but for visual education in the schools and the religious institutions.

Pictorial presentation has a great and good effect upon both adults and children. There is only one danger. That of either omission or commission of Biblical facts as they are. For some reason there seems to be a concerted attempt to sugar-coat, cover, and misrepresent certain cogent facts. Those technical advisors forget that the public, while it may have a retarded mentality along certain lines, is more familiar with the Bible as a whole than any other type of literature.

Most people are exposed to it at an early age and have remembered, either consciously or subconsciously, facts in relationship to the tyrants and heroes of Biblical history. The attempt to gloss the facts and present them in such a way as to add romantic and modern values has robbed the pictures, books and programs of a dynamic punch. The heroes become too heroic and the tyrants receive just punishment for their errors. This is not always true in biblical telling.

The appeal of the Bible lies in the fact that, though some of the stories are based on fiction, romanticizing them does not emphasize their moral appeal. It is a good thing for the human being of today to know that the mistakes of ancient times are not unique, and the problems of good and evil still exist in some cases in a more modified form and in other cases in an intensified form.

Theatre and radio and literature have a magnificent opportunity to do and compliment the job begun by the Rabbi or the minister. They can bring to the fore and familiarize even the most underprivileged with views and visions and ideals. They can make it easier for the minister to draw analogies knowing that there is background within the mind of the congregation. Mental and visual pictures remain and the task is lightened. My complaint is that they have added and subtracted situations and characterizations which do not exist and in some cases have even gone along more dangerous ground and changed the philosophy, and the morals of the point in question in order to increase the entertainment and spectacular values.

The technical advisors have been maintained in order to lend a certain amount of authenticity, and yet production has run wild. There were sections in David and Bathsheba that were completely removed from biblical verities. Sholem Asch has committed the same intellectual faux pas with his characterization of Bible stories. Here is a wonderful chance to play up the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, by eliminating the references which, because of faulty interpretation have caused so much misunderstanding. In his novels he attempts to re-create reasonable situations and occurrences without losing the trend of the story, and he succeeds only in a small measure.

In the case of biblical interpretation, when it comes to Judaism, every knock is not a boost because persecution is based on wrong interpretation and concealment of fact. Here is a chance for one of our own who has an international reputation to do some real missionary work and weld, rather than separate, the Jewish and the Gentile communities. In telling what he considers the unvarnished truth, as he sees it, he has wrought more havoc than good, because it is always a feather in the cap of the dyed-in-the-wool fundamentalist to back his argument with that of a Jewish apostate or meshumad.

Also, in the case of the biblical movie it is necessary that the sacredness of the text be preserved and respected. The choice of characters, the delicacy of the treatment of the story, and not one, but a panel of technicians to see that there will be no offense engendered among any peoples. Today more than ever we are seekers of truth. We must see to it in an atomic age that the beauty and sanctity of the Bible must be preserved and it is a sad state of events when liberties are taken with the word of the law.

In our perusal of the Biblical novels, or movies or radio programs and television productions, it would be well for us if we could find the time to re-read our Bibles and try in our minds to get a clear picture of the morals and patterns of human behavior, as they affect us today. It is well that the Bible has been brought into the foreground. Let us make it a policy to follow our Bibles as closely as we follow the books and music and theatre and related fields of entertainment and make it as natural a part of every day living as possible.

The program to be undertaken by Rassco is designed to help Israel overcome the severe housing shortage and to expand the country's economy through employment-creating industries. It includes construction of an 80-unit middle-class garden suburb on top of Mount Carmel at Haifa, the expansion of the low-cost immigrant housing plan and the erection of a large dairy organization and other enterprises.

Reporting that 431 new enterprises had been approved by the Israeli Investment Center, he noted that Americans had invested $25,000,000 from April, 1950, to April, 1951, in setting up business in Israel, according to the Herald Tribune.
